

An agent server registers a request information for purchasing from an authorized member in a request information data base by way of the Internet. The request information stored in the request information data base is searched by an authorized shop, and the shop serves related goods information available to the authorized member. In this way a direct sale of goods is done with high reliability on the Internet between the authorized member and the authorized shop.